DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- Claims 1-6, drawn to a method of screening test compounds for the ability to inhibit Abl kinase activity, classified in class 435, subclass 15.
- II. Claims 7-15, drawn to a method of treating or preventing pathogen infection comprising administering AbI tyrosine kinase inhibitors, classified in class 514, subclass 1.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are directed to related processes. The related inventions are distinct if the inventions as claimed do not overlap in scope, i.e., are mutually exclusive; the inventions as claimed are not obvious variants; and the inventions as claimed are either not capable of use together or can have a materially different design, mode of operation, function, or effect. See MPEP § 806.05(j). In the instant case, the inventions are mutually exclusive (methods of screening compounds by enzyme assay are not methods of treating pathogen infection, and vice versa); the methods have different steps (assaying candidate compound for enzyme inhibition vs administering inhibitor to mammal); and they result in different effects (candidate compound identified vs infection treated or prevented). Thus, the inventions above are distinct, each from the other.

They have acquired a separate status in the art as a separate subject for inventive effect and require independent searches (as indicated by the different classification). The search for each of the above inventions is not co-extensive particularly with regard to the literature search. For example, the examination of Group I requires a search for assaying test compounds for the ability to inhibit AbI tyrosine kinase activity which is not required for the examination of Group II. The examination of Group requires a search for administering AbI tyrosine kinase inhibitors which is not required for the search of Group I. Further, a reference which would anticipate the invention of one group would not necessarily anticipate or even make obvious another group. Finally, the consideration for patentability is different in each case. Thus, it would be an undue burden to examine all of the above inventions in one application.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of an invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.
